Byrnes Sends New Demand for Explanation of Moves

By JOSEPH GOODWIN
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, IRAN, March 13—Russian combat troops in full campaign kit were declared by British and other official sources today to have closed within 20 miles of this capital and to be moving southwest across northern Iran close to the borders of Turkey and oil-rich Iraq.

The reports caused Secretary of State James F. Byrnes to announce in Washington last night the dispatch of another note to Moscow demanding an explanation.

This correspondent flew over Karaj, 20 miles from Tehran, and counted 14 Sherman tanks, a score of other vehicles and saw half a dozen Red fighter planes at Kazvin to the north.

Premier Qavam Es Saltaneh, just returned from inconclusive negotiations in Moscow over the continued presence of Russian troops in Iran, declared today that no agreements were reached.

Qavam described as "ridiculous" reports circulated during his visit to Moscow that he agreed to six Soviet demands which were reported to have included the incorporation of Azerbaijan into the Soviet Union, granting of oil concessions to Russia and direction of the Iranian army by Russian officers.

He said he took a "firm stand" against "certain concessions which the Soviet Union expected the Persian government to make in their favor" and that the Russians in turn took a "firm stand" against his demands for immediate evacuation of Iran.

Reports reaching this troubled capital told of Russian combat troops entering the towns of Mianeh, Maragheh and Miyandaub close to the southern end of Lake Urlma near the Turkish and Iraq borders.

Russian troops were obligated by international agreement to have withdrawn by March 2. Instead, there were reports of large Red army reinforcements moving into Iran.

A British foreign office spokesman in London said that government has received reports of "considerable" Russian troop movements toward Tehran and the Iraq frontier. The British expressed concern over the continued presence of Russian troop concentrations in Iran and said the new troop movements were noted as early as March 4.

Both Iraq and Iran are rich in oil. Iran is the world's fourth largest producer.

Agitation Reported

Leftist agitation has been evident in Iran and some political observers expressed belief that the Russian moves near the capital might be planned to create "unrest and rebellion" in Tehran, as in the northern province of Azerbaijan. The leftist Tudeh party has been especially active in Tehran the past week.

Russian interest in Turkey has been expressed in at least two phases. Russia has demanded that Turkey cede to Russia the Black sea provinces of Kars and Ardahan. The Russians also are reported to have demanded bases in the Dardanelles.

Reports from Azerbaijan province indicated that a new Russian cavalry column was fanning into Iran through the border town of Astra on the Caspian sea.

Military observers commented that the Russians last year had dug trenches, constructed roads and conducted large "postwar" maneuvers along the Turkish-Iranian border.

Mianeh, between Tabriz and Tehran, is connected by rail and

SOLONS STAGE DRAFT PROBE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13—The house military committee called two cabinet officers and the Army's chief of staff today for more "plain talking on the world situation and on our own military needs."

Members said that is the reason they summoned Secretary of State Byrnes, Secretary of War Patterson and General Eisenhower to a closed-door-session before voting on such matters as:

Universal military training legislation advocated by President Truman.

Extension of the draft law which expires May 15.

Stockpiling of materials vitally needed in time of war.

Increases in pay of all Army and Navy personnel in an effort to spur enlistments.

After hearing Byrnes, Patterson and Eisenhower, the committee is expected to vote on universal training and the draft extension, two matters which many members say they feel must be settled before the committee does anything else.

There is strong committee sentiment for the proposal of House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts to delay training legislation until all efforts to outlaw peacetime conscription throughout the world have been exhausted.

While Chairman May (D-Ky) is known to be opposed to the Martin proposal and Mr. Truman has called it impractical, it has gathered strength in recent weeks.

There is scant support in the committee for a full year of military training as advocated by the President, although many members are sympathetic to an Amer-

100 MILLION URGED AS OHIO VETS' FUND

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 13—Establishment of a $100,000,000 veterans' trust fund by the state, and formation of a state veterans' bureau as requested by Governor Lausche were proposed today by the Ohio department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Chester J. Koch, legislative chairman of the Ohio V.F.W., outlined these proposals of the V. F. W. To be presented at a meeting of the Ohio veterans program commission in Columbus Friday:

Appointment of a veterans affairs commission by the governor for the purpose of helping Ohio's 850,000 ex-servicemen readjust themselves to civilian life, the commission to be composed of at least one World War II veteran, representatives of veterans organizations and state officials.

Creation of a $100,000,000 trust fund, set aside from Ohio's present unappropriated surplus and the surplus expected in future months.

Recommendations from the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, and the Ohio Veterans Information Centers association also will be considered at the program commission meeting, Koch added.

GOERING OPENS OWN DEFENSE

Once Gay Air Chief Relates Story of Career at War Crimes Trial.

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, Germany, March 13—Hermann Goering, dressed in an undecorated gray uniform with a red scarf wrapped around his neck, began his fight today against war crimes charges by testifying soberly of a career started in the Richthofen air squadron three decades ago.

While his white-haired attorney slowly questioned him, Goering mentioned the medals he had won and a wound sustained in fighting for the Kaiser's Reich.

The court was packed for the dramatic moment of the three and a half months trial as the once flamboyant reichmarshal took his place before the microphone.

In a low, somber voice Goering told how he met Hitler and joined the National Socialist party.

Field Marshall Gen. Albert Kesselring told the international military tribunal today that he was "a principal advocate" of invading England in the summer of 1940 and that Germany's "defensive air force" was ready for that blow.

"You recommended to Reichsmarshal Goering that the invasion take place immediately after Dunkerque?" Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief U. S. prosecutor, asked.

"Yes, and I still represented that view later on," the witness, testifying in the defense of defendant Hermann Goering, asserted. "Yes, the invasion was only called off because there were not sufficient seagoing craft."

Jackson cross-examined Kesselring closely on the witness' assertion that the Luftwaffe was a defensive weapon and the witness stated:

"Unfortunately we had a low opinion of the four-engined bomber, an erroneous belief which proved to be a mistake in later years. Its absence turned out to be extremely awkward.

"Higher-ups made the mistake," he said. "Herman Goering was in full charge of aircraft production."

China Says Russia Silent on Plans

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, March 13—Russia has not yet informed China when the withdrawal of Soviet forces from Manchuria will be completed, Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Liu Chieh said today.

He told a press conference the Chinese government had received no information that the Soviet evacuation of Mukden denoted the start of a general withdrawal from Manchuria.

Chinese dispatches reported government troops were streaming into Mukden and said the Russians had withdrawn from points east of the railroad town of Tiehling, about 50 miles north.

These dispatches gave the impression that part of Mukden was in Communist hands but chronicled no large-scale fighting.

Vote Tonight on Wage Offer of Shovel Co.

Local 1949 Calls Meeting at 7:30; Some May Return To Work Thursday.

Striking employes of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. tonight will vote on proposed terms of settlement of the seven-week old strike.

Leaders of United Steelworkers local 1949, which represents shop employes, have called a special meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in The Star auditorium.

At union headquarters today it was said the membership would be informed of the result of wage negotiations between the company and the local and would vote on proposed terms of settlement.

No Statement Made

Neither the company nor union had any statement to make today in regard to terms of the proposed settlement. It was reported that both sides agreed at the end of yesterday's conference to make no public announcement until the meeting tonight.

It was indicated a joint statement would be issued Thursday in case the vote tonight favors the acceptance of the negotiators' report.

If the union members vote to end the strike at least some employes will report back to work Thursday morning. The first men to return will get the plant in condition for full resumption of work, probably Monday morning.

All Day Conference

It was understood that the meeting was called at the conclusion of an all-day session yesterday between company officials and the union negotiating committee. Today company officials are meeting with representatives of local 2027, representing office workers.

The company had no statement today other than to say negotiations are continuing.

Union headquarters said this morning that approximately 1,200 were expected at the meeting tonight. This corresponds roughly to the number now on strike.

Local President Ed Parr will preside. Also expected to attend is William Bell of Mansfield, field representative of district No. 24.

The Shovel Co. plant, along with three other Marion industries, were closed when the nationwide steel strike was called Jan. 20. Other plants affected were the Baker Wood Preserving Co., the Pollak Steel plant and the Alloy Cast Steel Co.

Two Strikes End

Baker Wood returned to work two days after the United States Steel Corp., and the steelworkers' union reached a settlement. The Pollak plant returned to work about 10 days ago after an agreement was reached with local 2721.

The Alloy Cast Steel Co. along with the Shovel Co., still is on strike.

It was reported today that Alloy officials and the negotiating committee of local 1947 met Monday and had another meeting called for 3:30 p. m. today.

18 1-2 CENT PAY BOOST HALTS LONG WALKOUT

Peace in 113-Day-Old Strike Is Reached Following All Night Session.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, March 13 — The General Motors strike was settled today on the basis of an 18½ cents an hour wage increase (18½ per cent).

By The Associated Press

General Motors and CIO United Auto Workers negotiations at Detroit were nearing an agreement on the issues that have kept 175,000 production workers idle in the 113-day old strike, authoritative sources disclosed this forenoon.

As a negotiating session that began yesterday afternoon continued today, a corporation official who asked that his name not be used, told newsmen that agreement had been reached on the wage issue and that "a few other non-economic issues" remained to be resolved.

The official did not say whether the agreement was on the basis of an 18½ cents an hour increase as offered by the corporation or the 19½ cents an hour rise demanded by the union.

Another management source, asking not be be quoted by name, said the negotiations now in progress contemplated a definite settlement of the entire dispute and "not just another deal." He did not elaborate.

Union Is Silent

Union heads, including President R. J. Thomas, Vice President Walter P. Reuther and Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes, withheld comment.

They made no comment on reports that if a settlement is not reached today the strike would continue until after the annual convention of the UAW-CIO starting at Atlantic City March 23 and continuing through March 31.

The prolonged strike already has cost General Motors upwards of $550,000,000 in unfilled orders. The wage loss to the strikers has been calculated by the union at $127,890,000 and by the management at $144,866,000. The union figured the work week at 40 hours and the corporation at 45.6 hours.

The UAW-CIO originally demanded a 30 per cent wage rise, asserting that much increase was necessary to maintain the wartime take-home pay. When a presidential fact-finding commission recommended an increase of 19½ cents (17.5 per cent) the union accepted the proposal, but management rejected it and countered with its 18½ cents (16.5 per cent) offer.

Will Call Council

Union Vice President Reuther, who has been the leading figure in directing the prolonged strike, said today that when an agreement is reached the UAW General Motors council will be called immediately for a special confer-

Coffee and Hamburgers Fade As GM Peace Conferees Relax

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, March 13 — Gallons of coffee and heaps of hamburger sandwiches figured in the night-long General Motors strike parley.

Somewhere around midnight hunger assailed the hardworking participants in Federal Mediator James F. Dewey's session, and an order went out to corporation attaches to bring in food and drink.

A delay ensued, but ultimately bags of sandwiches were placed on a press room table where they quickly disappeared as hungry newsmen and negotiators dug in.

As the session wore through the early hours of the new day, almost all the corporation's and CIO United Auto Workers' representatives began showing signs of fatigue. Since 9:30 o'clock of the night before the group had been hard at it with scarcely a pause.

Comes Out for Air

At 2:30 a. m. red-faced Harry B. Coen, a GM vice president, emerged from the negotiating chamber and exchanged jokes with persons in the corridor.

"This is one way of getting to see the sunrise," Coen said, as he stopped for a drink from the water fountain. "You just work all night long."

A half hour later Dewey, looking tired, came out for a moment's recess. He was in shirt sleeves for the first time.

Forty minutes later the federal government representative was out in the corridor again — this time to bathe his tired eyes from the tap beneath the fountain.

On each occasion Dewey limited himself to a "no comment" as to the proceedings.

At least one man on each side, however, appeared to be taking the long, arduous task more or less in stride. It was Vice President Harry W. Anderson for General Motors, and Vice President Walter P. Reuther for the union.

Two Hold Up Well

All through the night Anderson, fastidiously attired as he has been through all the negotiations of weeks past, looked chipper and fresh on each appearance.

The same held true for Reuther, who stepped out to the washroom at 8 a. m. looking as fresh as the night before and with his red hair neatly pressed back.

At 11 p. m. Anderson had obliged newsmen waiting in the corridor by pulling out extra chairs from the negotiating room, and inviting the tired seekers to sit down and be comfortable. The press room itself was several steps away around the corner.

Red Press Opens Attack on U. S. Actions in Korea and Egypt

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 13—Articles attacking "American businessmen and politicians" in Korea and the continued presence of United States troops in Egypt were printed today in Soviet newspapers.

In an article in Pravda, Communist party newspaper, V. Smolensky described Dr. Syngman Rhee—who recently returned to Korea after 33 years of Japanese-imposed exile—as the leader of a group of Korean landowners and industrialists seeking to grab governmental power in Korea and control over mining enterprises there.

Describing Dr. Rhee and his followers as "old traders in the honor and freedom of their people," the article said the members of this group now were "coming out under the mask of strugglers for the independence of Korea."

Smolensky said Dr. Rhee had "directed his main effort toward establishing contact with anti-Soviet feeling in American circles and seeks American support and help.

The article charged further that Dr. Rhee was working secretly behind the backs of the Korean people and was making deals with American businessmen and politicians who, it said, were rendering financial assistance to the Korean political leader and his followers.

The Los Angeles newspaper Korean Independence was quoted by Smolensky's article as saying: "One American has boasted that if Syngman Rhee becomes head of the Korean government he and his friends will get into their hands control over mining industry enterprises in Korea worth $2,000,000. These Americans already have given Dr. Rhee no more and no less than $1,000,000 in order to achieve their aims."

"When Will American Troops Leave Egypt?" was the title of an article by Kerim Thabet-Bey in the Cairo magazine Al Musavvar which was mentioned in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia.

A Tass dispatch from Cairo, carried by Izvestia, quoted the article as saying that high British and American politicians were compelling Americans to remain in Egypt.

RURAL HEALTH BOOSTS URGED

Ohio Group Plans Six-Point Program of Improvement; Asks More Funds.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 13—An Ohio rural health conference today took up a tentative six-point program designed to make the state's country areas better places in which to live.

The program, drafted by subcommittees of the Ohio rural health committee, was expected to be adopted with few changes late in the day after a series of discussion groups, winding up the two-day conference.

It calls for legislative action to provide more funds for an expanded health program for the whole state, to place inspection of restaurants under the state department of health instead of the state fire marshal, to draw up a uniform milk code in keeping with U. S. public health service standards, and to permit two or more counties to unite their health efforts if their individual efforts are inadequate.

Other recommendations included establishment of a rural health committee similar to the statewide body in each county; cooperation of the state health department with such committees in setting up standards; a study of the present method of choosing county boards of health "to determine whether a more effective method of election should be devised"; health education programs in all schools; and passage of the Burton-Hill bill to provide federal grants in aid to local authorities planning new hospitals.

Dr. A. R. Mangus, Ohio State university professor of rural sociology, told the conference yesterday that health conditions in Ohio were worst in rural counties and river cities in southern and eastern Ohio, barring Cincinnati.

U. S. BACKS ITALY'S WORLD BANK ENTRY

By The Associated Press

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 13 — Italy has asked permission to join the world bank and monetary fund, it was learned today, and the United States plans to support her bid for early entry.

Fred M. Vinson, chairman of the boards of governors of the international monetary conference on Wilmington island, informed the membership committee of the Italian request yesterday. A U. S. delegate revealed. No peace treaty has been signed with Italy.

A majority of the United States group favors opening the doors to Italy, the other delegate told a reporter, on the theory that her economic plight is so grave that her rehabilitation is a worldwide responsibility.

Opponents of this view hold that the self-same economic distress makes it unlikely the Italians could meet their responsibilities—that is, repay their borrowings from the $9,100,000,000 bank and $8,000,000,000 monetary fund—and should for the present remain a relief recipient.

In the background is the obvious consideration that if Italy's economic future is shaky, this country would like other nations to share the liability for any of her defaults.

This loomed as a new source of debate, even as the contest over a permanent site for the twin economic agencies grew into a three-ring, instead of a two-ring, contest. Chicago joined the group of candidate cities, along with New York and Washington.

Urges Bible In Public Schools

Needed To Combat "Low Moral Tone of Nation" Marion Pastor Tells W.C.T.U.

"Bible teaching needed in public schools for this nation's spiritual reconversion" was the keynote and theme of a message by Rev. E. M. Hertzler of Marion at an executive conference session of the Ohio Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Columbus Tuesday night. The conference was held in the Deshler-Wallick hotel Tuesday and today. Nearly 300 delegates were present.

Rev. Hertzler, pastor of First Church of the Brethren here and field representative for the National Reform association with headquarters at Pittsburgh, Pa., used as the title for his address, "Redigging the Well-springs of National Life."

He urged restoration of Bible teaching in the public schools as the first step in combatting the "low moral tone" of the nation.

"We must exert every means to correct the present unfortunate and preposterous theory that it is illegal to teach the nation's youth the fundamental principles of the Christian faith upon which our democracy is based," he declared.

Pointing out that laws forbid the teaching of sectarian doctrines, he maintained, "if a type of religious curriculum can be provided which the courts will rule to be non-sectarian, it can legally be taught in the public schools and can be supported by public funds."

Then, commenting on the trend of general teaching in the schools, he stressed the point that "we must not rest until every bit of the teaching of the public schools, in every field of learning, shall be taught from a God-ward point of view."

His estimate was that in 50 Ohio towns, and in more than 600 public school systems throughout the nation, instruction in religion and moral education based on Bible teachings is now being offered in public school buildings during class hours by teachers hired by the churches.

Rev. Hertzler, when president of the Marion County Council of Churches, was active in promoting establishment of weekday religious education classes in the public schools in Marion.

Marion County Women To Be Represented in Akron.

Election of delegates to the state meeting, plans for a membership drive and a panel discussion highlighted a meeting of the Marion County Republican Women's club Tuesday afternoon in Republican headquarters. The business session was followed by a social hour and tea.

Mrs. Blyss Bonner and Mrs. Jennie Reed were named to represent the club at the state convention April 4 and 5 in the Mayflower hotel at Akron. The membership drive will get under way immediately, it was announced. Mrs. Raymond Furniss was in charge of the compiling of a membership list. The membership committee includes Mrs. J. D. Williamson and Mrs. Earl Thomas. A panel discussion on the topic, "The Malayan Countries," was presented by Mrs. John Oborn and Mrs. J. D. Williamson and was followed by a roundtable discussion. The program hour was in charge of Mrs. Dale Lawrence. Mrs. W. N. Harder, president of the club, presided.

For the social hour, in charge of Mrs. D. R. Biggert and Mrs. Clarence Cline, the tea table was lighted with candles and guests were seated at small tables arranged throughout the room.

A meeting in April will be in the form of a community supper with candidates and Republican officials of the city and county as guests.

ence to approve it. It will be submitted then to the union locals in 92 GM plants for ratification.

The 100-man council represents each of the union locals.

Reuther expressed the opinion the workers could start returning to their jobs within a week after ratification. Corporation spokesmen made no immediate comment on this statement.

The meeting, interrupted only for brief intermission for food and coffee, began with the two sides apparently deadlocked on numerous issues, including the UAW demand for a 19½ cents an hour wage increase. The corporation has offered 18½ cents.

Earlier yesterday, Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president, minimized the significance of the lengthy conference toward settlement of the dispute which had left 175,000 production workers idle since last Nov. 21.

Meanwhile, actual negotiations between John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and bituminous coal producers may not get started until next week. Yesterday Lewis submitted to the operators nine generalized demands for the new contract for the 400,000 soft coal miners. They included wage increases and shorter hours as well as a health and welfare fund for mine workers; adjustment of vacation, severance, and holiday pay, and "adjustment of the controversy" regarding unionization of supervisory, technical and clerical employes. Lewis has threatened a nationwide coal strike April 1, if necessary to enforce his demands.

The union's bargaining committee, a UMW spokesman said, will meet with industry negotiators with instructions to base the wage issue on shorter hours and job classification differentials—"and bargain the best increase they can get."

A session of the wage conference was scheduled today and was expected to be devoted to union arguments in support of the general demands.

Lewis, demanding that bituminous operators create a health and welfare fund for miners, disclosed today results of a union survey of the miners' position under present workmen's compensation laws.

The statistics and conclusions reached in the survey were presented by Harrison Combs, a member of the UMW legal staff.

The demand for a health and welfare fund was presented to the operators yesterday by Lewis, along with eight other proposals for the 400,000 miners which he asked the operators to bargain out before April 1.

Lewis introduced Combs to the conference and indicated he would follow with additional union representatives to present his case for increased pay with a shorter work week, and improved protection against injuries.

Combs said that 13 coal-producing states had an elective system of workmen's compensation, and that companies could withdraw from coverage under the law on ten days notice.

The idle across the country because of labor disputes dropped to below 750,000, as more striking steelworkers reached agreements with employers.

A further reduction was expected, in view of an announcement by an official of the Scovill Manufacturing Co. in Waterbury, Conn., one of the "big three" of the brass industry, that a wage agreement had been reached with bargaining representatives of 4,300 striking CIO brass workers.

A company spokesman said it had agreed to an 18½ cents hourly wage hike for the workers, who struck Feb. 6 in support of demands for a 30 per cent pay boost. A meeting was called today by the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union to ratify the agreement. But there was no announcement that the status of strikers at the American Brass Co. and the Chase Brass and Copper Co. had been changed by the Scovill agreement.

Army Wins Round in Fight for Bomb

WASHINGTON, March 13—The issue of national safety gave the armed forces the decision today in an important preliminary test on postwar control of atomic energy.

The decision was hit immediately by Secretary of Commerce Wallace, who saw in it "the potentiality of delivering us into the hands of military fascism in this nation."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), however, held that military regulation" is necessary until stabilized international control is developed effectively to prohibit the use of atomic energy for military purposes by anybody at any time."

The test developed when the special senate atomic committee voted six-to-one yesterday to incorporate into pending legislation a provision giving a presidentially-appointed military liaison committee a right to intervene before a civilian atomic control commission of five.

Wallace declared this was a vote "to place the control of atomic energy, in effect, in the hands of the military." He called it an "exceedingly unfortunate development."

The armed forces have taken the position all along that postwar atomic energy control should be their responsibility because of the importance of atomic weapons to the nation's defense. But numerous scientists and others have argued for complete civilian control to advance research and allay international suspicion.

The decision in favor of the military was on a proposal to revise the bill sponsored by Senator McMahon (D-Conn), which would entrust postwar atomic development to strictly civilian control. McMahon cast the lone vote against the proposal which would give the military veto power in matters of national security.

Wage negotiations between the General Electric Co. and the CIO United Electrical Workers union also was scheduled today. As the company and union representatives attempted to effect a settlement ending a two-month walkout of 100,000 CIO workers. Non-production employes were returning to the company's plants in 16 states under a plan recently approved by GE and the union. The strike, in support of demands for a 32 daily wage boost, started Jan. 15.

ON NAZIS' U. S. PARTY LIST. Five of the 609 alleged Nazi party members who infiltrated every walk of life in the U. S. and are now on a list compiled from party records seized in the American Occupation zone in Germany and announced by the Senate Military Affairs sub-committee on war mobilization are pictured above. Manfred Zapp, top left, and Gunther Tonn, top right, posed as German news correspondents. Zapp, arrested immediately after our entry into the war, was exchanged for the lives of two Americans, but was arrested last spring by the U. S. Third Army. From Milwaukee are Erich Kock, left below, a watchmaker, and Mrs. Erna Bulla, center below, a housewife and former school teacher in Germany, while Karl Lange, right below, was an instructor at Harvard's Blue Hills meteorological observatory when he was picked up by the FBI after Pearl Harbor.

LEWIS STARTS WAGE DEMAND DRIVE. Meeting with the 250-man committee of the United Mine Workers in Washington, John L. Lewis, UMW president, is shown discussing negotiations for a new contract with the mine operators. This was expected to ask for shorter hours; a royalty on each ton of coal taken from a mine, and the unionizing of mine foremen. At right is Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of UMW.

NAZI MASTER. Friedrich Flick, 62, said to have been the greatest single power behind the Nazi war machine as head of a $400,000,000 combine, is shown under arrest in Frankfurt, Germany, where he is being held by American authorities, who are investigating his record. Much of his holdings came, investigators say, from forced sales of Jewish plants and mines stolen from French, Czechoslovakia and Soviet properties.

rond with Russian army headquarters at Kazvin, just northeast of the capital.

Plot Is Seen

Political observers here, some of whom say the Russians supported the rebellion which resulted in the separation of Russian-occupied Azerbaijan province from the central government, speculated that the present Russian activity might be planned to create "unrest and rebellion" in the capital.

The Russian garrison at Karaj—their nearest to Tehran—last week received a 26-car train from Kazvin which contained three Sherman tanks, three armored cars, six trucks, three carloads of food and ammunition, and carried eight or ten new tank and artillery officers.

In a plane correspondents circled twice over the Karaj encampment and counted 14 Sherman tanks besides a score or so of other vehicles, many covered with canvas tarpaulins.

At Takistan, north of Kavin, however, five fuel trucks were moving southward and 22 tank trucks were lined up in Kazvin. Six Red fighter planes and one observation craft stood on the runways of the Russian airdrome at Kazvin.

U. S. Expects Sparks To Fly at UNO Parley

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13—Air-clearing statements by American officials promoted confidence in congress today that there will be no mincing of words when the United Nations security council tackles pressing world problems March 25.

Senator George (D-Ga) told a reporter he expects "candid, open and above-board" discussion of international sore spots during the council's New York meeting—a course he said promises the best hope for settlement.

"The time has undoubtedly arrived when nations should speak plainly, and they won't lose anything by doing it," he declared. "As for ourselves, we are big enough to assert our deeper convictions—not in our selfish interests—but in the interest of the world."

George and other senators praised the tack taken by foreign relations committee in urging that the major Allied powers air their differences fully in the council and cooperate to obtain a decision there.

Man Stages Nylon Probe, kes Sad Report for Ladies

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

...SON, March 13—So you want nylon stockings? Take ...e out of luck.

...them to meet the demand simply are not being made. ...ufacture of rayon stockings has dropped to a dribble. ...t month a steady flow of nylons will start reaching ..., say the hosiery makers. But they add this:

...expect to get all the nylons you want anytime in 1946.

...big department: ...ipated this practice: ...that nylon stockings ...their charge-account ...nt to their cash cus-

...customers, with charge ...a number of stores, ...more than their share ...stockings. Others have ...nort.

What OPA Says

...official, in a position to ...what he's talking about, ...

...king industry now is ...not less than 1,000,000 dozen pairs of nylons a month, is shooting for 3,000,000 dozen pairs, may not reach that goal for six months.

The National Hosiery Manufacturers association says:

"A normal prewar supply of women's hosiery will not be available to the market or the consumer during 1946, even after steady production has been established.

As noted, it hasn't been established yet.

(There's no evidence to support rumors that the nylon shortage is due to heavy shipments of the stockings overseas for higher prices.)

Here's the story behind all this:

Nylon-making just got under way in 1940. Up to that time silk stockings dominated the market.

Then the war came, shutting off the supply of silk from Japan.

The government needed all the silk we had on hand and all the nylon which could be produced.

So none of it went into stockings. Instead, rayon stockings were made.

The war ended. The DuPont Co., which makes nylon, announced it would start turning out nylon for the stocking-makers.

During the war the mills which make rayon were forced by the government to ship a certain amount of rayon regularly to the stocking mills.

This is what kept American women in stockings, even though they were only rayon.

Order Is Cancelled

But this order was abolished when the war ended. The rayon makers, according to the same OPA official, thought this:

1. Rayon can't compete with nylon as a stocking material.

2. Therefore, cut down shipments of rayon to stocking-makers. We'll soon lose them as customers. Instead, send the rayon we make to manufacturers who'll continue using it for other things. They'll be our regular, long-time, postwar customers.

The rayon makers did just that, gradually cutting down the amount of rayon sent to the stocking mills. The stocking-makers were set to make nylons.

But they began to have difficulty getting into the production of nylons. It was a new job for some of them. "Technological difficulties arose," is the way the experts say it. This slowed down output.

The government may try—but on a voluntary basis and not under wartime orders—to get the rayon makers to ship more rayon to the stocking mills. This is not certain.

The hosiery manufacturers say:

"Production of women's hosiery in 1946 will approximate 40,000,000 dozen pairs—at most 10 pairs per woman.

"Three out of every four pairs produced in 1946 will be nylons. This is about seven pairs per woman, based on a total of 30,000,000 dozen pairs."

Keep your fingers crossed. Just hope the stocking-makers have guessed right. Meantime, you'll have to wait.

Smith Renews Pension Fight

Marion Representative Still Opposes Retirement Pay for Congressmen.

Cong. Frederick C. Smith, Republican of Marion, last Friday and again yesterday told the house of representatives that he intended to do everything possible to defeat the "obviously unconstitutional bill" to provide pensions for congressmen, Mr. Smith said. (The bill was defeated in a house vote yesterday). "How it is possible for members of congress to support this bill to provide pensions for congressmen, after the panning this body got from the public when the other congressional pension bill was passed, is difficult to understand. So irate were the citizens that congress was forced to repeal the pension law." Members of congress, said Mr. Smith, made a contract with their constituents "when they asked them for their votes" in which no mention was made of any pension and to take a pension would break that contract.

Congressman Smith pointed out that under the proposed legislation he could retire at the end of 1946 and receive total payments amounting to $15,315 by paying in only $2,500 and "that total net pension for certain congressmen if they retire this year, 1946, may run up to $56,872.

"The $2,500 paid in by congressmen would not be a real contribution. This would be returned to them with interest, or in case of death any unpaid portion would be paid to their heirs.

"Indications are that some members are seeking to prevent a roll call vote on the pension bill. To decide this vital issue without a record vote, would be, in my judgment, a calamity. We owe it to our constituents to stand up and be counted.

"So long as I remain in congress I intend to retain my independence and be free to serve the interests of my constituents and the public in general. I am not concerned with any class legislation for that it what is destroying America."

Bill Defeated

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13 — Election-year jitters got the blame today for the latest defeat of "pensions-for-congressmen." At least that's the reason advanced by 79-year old Rep. Sabath (D-Ill), dean of the house, after his colleagues voted 217 to 116 yesterday against taking up a lawmakers' retirement bill. A similar measure failed four years ago.

PRINCIPAL BACKS UP TEACHER VS SENATOR

By The Associated Press

WARREN, O., March 13—Harding High school principal Milton Mollenkopf came to the defense of instructor Albert Marowitz today in connection with letters on OPA, written by students in Marowitz' "Problems of Democracy" class.

Robert A. Taft, Ohio's Republican senator, recently wrote Mollenkopf, saying he had received letters from the students, asking him to support continuance of price control. Taft said it appeared "only one side of the question" was submitted to the students.

The principal said Senator Taft's letter came as "a raw shock," and said he knew Marowitz had made no effort to control the thinking of the students.

It has developed that other letters, against price control, were sent to the Senator James Huffman and Congressmen Michael J. Kirwan, both Democrats, and both supporters of OPA, said the principal.

Concerning the teacher, Mollenkopf said "my studied judgment is that he deliberately stimulates and welcomes individual reaction rather than states a conclusion.

"This whole situation has arisen because the school has attempted to remain a part of the community and nation," declared the principal. "As near as school life will permit, we have tried to give our pupils the experience of citizenship as well as the learning obtained from textbooks."

John Paul Jones, famous U. S. naval officer, was color-blind.

To "the bitter end" has a nautical origin. A ship's anchor chain, at the point where it was fastened to a vertical timber called the bitt, was known as the bitter end. Thus, when the chain has been played out to "the bitter end," there's nothing more that can be done.

Tokyo Police Give Lewis J. Valentine Plenty To Work On

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, March 13—Lewis J. Valentine, the former Gotham police commissioner who came to Japan to give this country "cops just like we have in New York," took one look at a Tokyo policeman today and recoiled in horror.

"My God," he muttered at sight of the little five-foot man, his soiled black uniform, defeated looking cap and unpolished sword. "Not even a cop at the end of the Toonerville line would wear a uniform like that."

Valentine told a press conference the Japanese policemen "should have uniforms they can be proud of — not those bags they're wearing. And I am taking into consideration the fact they've had to wear the old ones a long time. But they're still terrible."

Invited by General MacArthur to advise on the reorganization of the Japanese police, fire and prison systems, Valentine said the supreme commander's objective "is to democratize the police department and take the fear of the police out of the minds of the people. We must make the Japanese policeman public friend Number One—not public enemy Number One," he said.

G.O.P. TO PICK UP 40 SEATS, SAYS SENATOR

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13 — A Republican party leader came out of the west today with the political prophecy that his party will pick up a minimum of 40 house seats in the November elections.

The Republicans need a net gain of only 27 to win a bare majority of the house. But Democratic officials have predicted their party will get better than an even break.

The leader just back from the west coast is John Danaher, former senator from Connecticut and now $20,000-a-year congressional aide to the Republican national committee.

Danaher visited six states—Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah and Arizona.

His claim of 40 overturns of Democratic seats applied to the nation. But he said party members told him the G.O.P. would gain a minimum of 10 seats in California and 3 in Washington.

The state dining room in the White House can seat 100 guests.

Five men from Springfield had signified intention of entering this tournament but did not weigh in Monday. No answer has as yet been received to a telegram sent to Springfield by the sponsoring Y's Men's Service club.

PITT HIRES FESLER; BIG TEN BID SEEN

Ohio State Star Takes Over Shaughnessy Hot Spot.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, March 13—An ex-Ohio State football player was the new University of Pittsburgh grid coach today and there was speculation that the appointment may be another step in the Panthers' bid for Big Ten membership.

Wesley Fesler, now assistant coach at Princeton and a former gridiron great at Ohio State, was named yesterday to succeed Clark D. Shaughnessy who resigned Feb. 4 to return to the University of Maryland.

It was the latest chapter in Pitt's troubled athletic history that began with Dr. John (Jock) Sutherland's stormy exit in 1938. That was the year Pitt, deciding to "deemphasize" the football teams that won 111 out of 131 games and went thrice to the Rose Bowl, placed itself under the rules of the western Big Ten conference.

As the quality of Pitt football declined, the schedules got tougher with the emphasis on conference foes. Last year the Panthers played and lost—four games with Big Ten rivals.

Chicago formally dropped out of the Big Ten last week, leaving a vacancy Pitt officials do not deny they are seeking.

Today, some of Pitt's alumni who walked out with Sutherland admitted they were disappointed with the selection.

MAT SHOW TOMORROW

A double 90 minute main event is on tomorrow night's wrestling card with one of the bouts, Ali Pasha vs Indio Yaqui, a no-holds-barred affair. Whitey Walburg vs Steve Nenoff is the other main event. A 10-minute tag team match between the teams of Dorman Knapp and Bob Rose vs. Howard Edington and Kenny Saunders is booked for the preliminary.

PREDICTS TENNIS FUTURE—Vinnie Richards, Bill Tilden's tennis doubles partner, predicted open tennis tourneys in this country with about 20 amateurs competing against 20 pros, in an interview at Miami, Fla. He sees a great relaxing of amateur rules as appreciation of the value of professional tennis grows. Since it takes about two years to build a Davis cup team, Richards believes tennis bigwigs are on the verge of playing the matches every other year and holding an open tourney in alternate years.

"Y" League Playoff Booked for Tonight

Roecker's Bakery and Isaly Dairy battle tonight at 8 for second and third place trophies in an extra playoff game of the Y. M. C. A. independent cage league. With McMillen already the possessor of first place honors on a record of 14 wins and no defeats, tonight's winner can cinch second place while the loser takes third place awards.

Westerner Sets Pace for College Scorers

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 13—Although he scored only four points in his final game of the season on Monday night, Elmore Morgenthaler of New Mexico Mines seems virtually assured of the 1946 national collegiate individual high scoring basketball title.

The seven-foot one-inch player finished the campaign with 595 points in 28 games, three more than the 592 points Vince Hanson of Washington State tallied in 37 games in winning the high scoring crown a year ago.

BIRDS RING BELL

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE—The Rev. George E. Englert and police came running when the burglar alarm in St. James Catholic church clanged in the early morning hours.

Their search ultimately led them to the church steeple, where they found two frightened boys, clutching their "loot"—a bag containing 21 pigeons captured in the belfry.

MEXICAN BALL LEAGUE CHALLENGES CHANDLER

Will Sign Pact If They Get Major Loop Status.

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, March 13 — Mexican League President Jorge Pasquel declares he would accept U. S. Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler's proposal for a U. S.-Cuba-Mexico baseball pact provided his circuit gets big league treatment.

Commenting on Chandler's suggestion, made in Havana Sunday, Pasquel said, "if they want to make an agreement giving us treatment like the really big league we are, we're ready to enter into it. Otherwise we are ready to give them a terrific fight they never expected to have."

Pasquel asserted there is $50,000 cash in advance awaiting Bob Feller, Cleveland's ace pitcher, if he signs a three-year contract to play here.

"Even Feller doesn't know yet about that part of our offer to him," the Mexican league prexy said. Feller previously had turned down an offer to hurl in the Mexican league at a salary of $100,000 a year for the next three years.

Tribe To Count on Rookies Despite 6-4 Loss To Reds

By The Associated Press

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 13—Rookies are slated for most of the Cleveland Indians' starting berths again today as the Tribe attempts to cool off the red-hot exhibition form of the New York Yankees.

Manager Lou Boudreau, who watched his charges absorb their first exhibition loss to the Cincinnati Reds yesterday, said he planned to continue playing the rookies for some time because "they reported early and they deserve the chance to make good."

It's also no secret that Manager Lou hopes to find some badly-needed outfield help among recruit standouts Gene Woodling, Ted Sepkowski and Cliff Mapes.

Woodling and freshman second baseman Bias Monaco paced the Tribe's nine-hit attack by blasting two hits in three trips apiece yesterday as the Indians bowed 6 to 4 to the Redlegs.

Ralph Brown, an unheralded—and still unsigned—rookie, also has turned in some sparkling fielding performances and timely bingles in his bid for an outfield post with the Tribe.

Boudreau reported he also was well pleased with the pitching of Don Black and Tom Ferrick in yesterday's tilt.

Black, a tall right-hander who had a stormy career with the Philadelphia Athletics, reported in camp in good condition and has rapidly rounded into effective form, Boudreau said. Ferrick, a fireball hurler, formerly starred with a Navy all-star team in the Pacific.

Cronin Gets Lowdown

SARASOTA, Fla.—Manager Joe Cronin, puffed up a bit by his Boston Red Sockers' 1-0 win over the St. Louis Cardinals, popped at least one seam when Eddie Dyer, the Cards' new pilot, advised him that the Yankees are considerably ahead of his charges at this early stage.

Senators Sign Cubans

HAVANA — The Washington Senators are not letting organized baseball's differences with the Mexican league interfere with their signing of Cuban players. Six Cubans now are on Washington's roster: infielders Angel Fleitas and Gilberto Torres, catcher Mike Guerra, pitchers Oliverio Ortiz, Gaspar Del Monte and Armando Roche. All but Torres and Guerra probably will be sent to Washington's minor league farms.

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Jack Kramer will make his first start of the season today when the St. Louis Browns play the Chicago White Sox. Tex Shirley and Frank Biscan were picked to face Chicago in a secondary game with another White Sox team at Pasadena.

Giles-MacPhail Feud Flares in Florida

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 13—Grapefruit league "feud" between General Manager Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds and Lee (Roarin' Red) MacPhail, boss man of the New York Yankees, added spice today to the spring training season.

Giles, it will be recalled, succeeded MacPhail as G.M. of the Cincinnati club back in 1937.

The redhead started the fireworks yesterday when he learned belatedly, that there was a doubleheader scheduled today between the Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg. He demanded that the twin bill be reduced to a single game on grounds that it would hurt attendance at a single Yankee-Cardinal game in the same park Thursday.

There was a vociferous outburst at the park here, where the Reds mangered the second-string Cleveland Indians 6-4, during which spectator Ford Frick, president of the National league brushed off McPhail by walking away.

MacPhail stomped to a telephone, rang up Giles.

Giles quoted MacPhail as saying that if the Cards played two games they would break a contract with the Yankees.

"I told him I knew of no such contract and that we intended to play two games," said Giles, "but he must have convinced Breadon (Owner Sam of the St. Louis club) because the Cards notified us today they could play only one."

Giles said he informed MacPhail in no uncertain terms that he was burned up because the Yankees were sending their Bradenton camp here to meet the Reds Saturday, while the St. Petersburg aggregation — which includes Joe DiMaggio, Charlie Keller, Joe Gordon and others—was playing the Cards at St. Pete.

Chances are there will be very few "names" in the lineups, as Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds indicated he would start his second-stringers against the less potent Yanks.

Borowy Sees Best Year of Career Coming Up

Cubs $100,000 Hurler Feels in Pink, But Still Burnt Up About Macphail Insinuations.

CATALINA ISLAND, Calif. — When Manager Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs took his first look at Hank Borowy in the training camp here, he saw Mr. Contented Man personified.

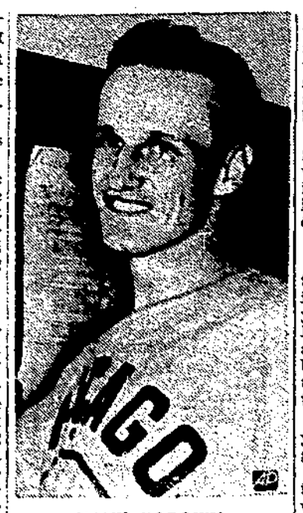
The Bloomfield, N. J., bullet is a happy man these days.

"And why shouldn't I be happy?" questions Hank. "Life has been good to me since I left the Yankees. I have no kick coming. I signed a good contract and became the father of a son during the winter.

Full of Confidence

"My arm feels great—better than ever—and I feel confident of having the best year of my career," smiles the slim pitcher.

Borowy might have gone through his entire career unsung and unnoticed despite his pitching ability if Larry MacPhail hadn't traded him to the Cubs for a reported $100,000 last July. He was in the spotlight from the time of his trade right up until the last day of the World Series.



HANK BOROWY
Feels Better Than Ever

Hank, who never pitched lower than Class AA ball, jumped from the Fordham University campus to the Newark Bears. He was a star from the start and soon moved up to the Yankees, where he continued his winning ability.

This is Hank's first trip to California. He has regained the weight and stamina he lost during the hectic 1945 campaign and is now carrying about 177 pounds on his six foot frame.

Still Burnt Up

"I feel better than ever," says the slim hurler. "First of all it is nice to know you are set with your feet on the ground. I think I have proven MacPhail wrong and although I am still burnt up by his insinuations when he traded me, I think it was the best thing that ever happened to me.

"I want to win 20 games this year and I think I'll make the grade!"

Hank last year became the first pitcher to win 20 games while working in two leagues since Joe McGinnity pulled the stunt many years ago.

There are few subjects men talk about more than shaving—and no blade that's had so much "word-of-mouth" advertising as Pal Hollow Ground.

Ordinary safety razor blades are ground like a pocket knife. Pal Blades are different—they're Hollow Ground just like a barber's razor.

Result: Pal Blades are flexible in your razor—follow facial contours effortlessly. Your shave is cool, quick, no "bearing down." And delicate edges last longer, too. That's why millions call it the Pal "Feather Touch" shave

20 OHIOANS HELD IN "HOT" BUTTER DEAL

By The Associated Press

Oscar Burg, 26, has been charged with breaking and entering the Miami Valley Milk Producers Co-operative association plant here on the night of Feb. 36, when 816 pounds of butter were reported stolen.

Also under arrest, and facing charges of receiving and concealing stolen property is Moses H. Taylor, 45.

Detective Sgt. R. K. Pfauhl and Detective Robert Reed, said Taylor admitted in a signed statement that he bought five cases, 340 pounds of the stolen butter from Burg.

Subsequent dealing in the stolen butter involved sales to and by three grocers and a wholesaler at over-ceiling prices. No charges have been filed against the latter four persons and further investigation of their cases will be made by OPA officials, detectives said.

EXPERT ON BALKANS IS ROTARY SPEAKER

Talks on Conditions Following War in Europe.

Theodore Andrica, nationalities editor of the Cleveland Press, who recently concluded a five months' tour through Italy, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Roumania, spoke to the Marion Rotary club and guests in the club's weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday at Hotel Harding.

Mr. Andrica said Europeans are pessimists and Americans are optimists and that America looks to the future for the best while the Europeans look to the past. He compared the nylon stocking line in the United States with the bread line in Europe, declaring the American women are wondering if they will get any nylons and the Europeans are wondering what they will get to eat.

Mr. Andrica, recognized authority on the Balkans, said people of central Europe are classified into three categories: those who have been robbed once, more than once, or not at all. People travel only when they must, as there are poor means of transportation. One side of a country may be healthy while the other side is starving. The peasant or small man has grown to believe nothing except that the man with food is boss.

As evidence of the hardships due to inflation faced by Europeans Mr. Andrica related that an American cigaret in some parts of Europe would cost $2, a bar of chocolate $1, two pounds of sugar $15. Earnings of a university professor are $3 a week in American money, government clerks receive $2 a month, men's hose cost $1 and ladies' hose $2, therefore a woman's wages for a month would be a pair of hose and no meals. An ordinary meal in Paris would be $10, in Italy $5.

Guests of the club were Charles H. Yohvling of Youngstown, Herbert James of Chicago, and Chris Turoff and T. S. Cathers of Marion. The student reporter from Harding High school was Peggy Dixon.

PRESIDENT SUMMONS BYRNES FOR REPORT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13 — President Truman today called in Secretary of State Byrnes for a review of the foreign situation, and the White House termed mostly inaccurate a number of British reports dealing with purported new United States moves in international affairs.

The specific points set down for the Truman-Byrnes conversation were not disclosed, but presumably they will encompass the Russian moves in Iran and Manchuria and the American protests against the Soviet actions.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross was asked at a news conference about a series of reports published in Britain that Mr. Truman was seeking a new meeting of the "Big Three"; that the President had been in communication with British Prime Minister Atlee and that he also was trying to contact Marshal Stalin.

Ross said that Mr. Truman will hold his weekly news conference at 4 p. m. (EST) tomorrow. Questions on foreign situation likely will be asked them by newsmen.

U. S. OFFERS POST TO JOBLESS OHIO HERO

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 13—The Veterans Administration has a job for Forrest E. Everhart, 24-year-old winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, if he still needs employment.

Ralph H. Stone, deputy administrator of the V.A. here, announced this today after learning that Everhart had set out for Texas City, Tex., after being unable to find suitable employment in his home town of Hambridge, Ohio.

Everhart has trench feet, and the ailment made it impossible for him to keep a factory job which required him to stand.

He was presented the Medal of Honor—the nation's highest military award—for his heroism in beating off a German counterattack of three infantry companies and 12 tanks after all but four of his platoon had been wiped out in the French village of Kerling, Nov. 12, 1944.

He is married and has a two-year-old son.

Lumber Men Hear Talks on GI Bill

On-the-job training provisions of the GI Bill of Rights as applied to the lumber industry was the subject of two talks given lumber men from Marion and surrounding counties at Hotel Harding Tuesday night. Thirty representatives of the industry from Marion, Wyandot, Hardin, Logan, Delaware, and Crawford counties attended the monthly dinner meeting of District 11 of the Ohio Retail Lumber Dealers' Association.

Speakers were R. Lucas of Columbus, attorney for the association, and Francis Fields of the local office of the U. S. employment service.

ability unquestioned, with honor unsullied."

Ickes Is Ignored

Neither the President nor Pauley made personal reference to Ickes or his testimony during the senate hearings.

Ickes testified that Pauley had told him that he could raise $100,000 from oil men for the Democratic campaign if the administration abandoned efforts to get government title to Tidelands oil areas.

Ickes referred to this as the "crawfish proposition" he had ever received. Pauley denied he had suggested it.

In a letter dated today, Pauley told the President that all charges made against him "have been answered and shown to be false."

Pauley added:

"But no matter how complete the answers to false charges may be, I do not believe there is any immediate antidote for the current hysteria that has been engendered by these misrepresentations. Under these circumstances I do not feel that I would have the opportunity to render the Navy or you the high order of service both deserve. Accordingly, I ask that you withdraw my nomination."

Mr. Truman replied in his letter that Pauley's belief that there is no immediate antidote "to the tactics which have been employed against you," is "the only reason I would accept for the action you now ask me to take."

SCHOOL PROGRAM SET FOR UNION MEETING

To Be Discussed by Council Executive Group.

Discussion of the proposed Marion school building program is planned for a meeting of the Marion Industrial Union Council's executive board next Monday night at 8 p. m.

The council's school committee will make its report and the board will decide whether or not it will indorse the program. O. W. Mather, council publicity chairman, said today the committee still has a few more facts to compile before it is ready to make its complete report.

Plans to hold the school discussion came out of a meeting of the council at its headquarters on East Center street Tuesday night. James Jenkins, council secretary, gave a report on the school program and the executive board decided to call a special meeting to discuss the program further.

A report from the community fund advisory committee in regard to relief was read. Action on the report will be taken at a later date, Mr. Mather said.

A report by Harold Townsend, delegate to the National Religion and Labor conference in Detroit Feb. 25 and 26, was given and two new delegates from local 750 UAW were installed.

PESSIMISTS REIGN IN ACTIVE SESSION

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 13—Pessimistic forces took hold in the stock market today and leaders dropped one to more than four points in the most active dealings this week.

Tenseness in the international picture was said by brokers to be discouraging to investors and to be leading to a general lightening of commitments after several days of indecision.

Prominent on the slide were Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Goodyear, Schenley, American Telephone, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, American Can, Southern Railway, Santa Fe, American Smelting, Air Reduction, General Electric, Dow Chemical, Johns-Manville, Paramount Pictures, Electric Power & Light, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Youngstown Sheet and Douglas Aircraft.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"YES, I do believe Philip has completely changed his attitude toward Mary," I told Olga.

Then I leaned forward in my chair and took her hands in mine.

"And I know," I said earnestly, "as does Mary, and her uncle Dicky, who, above all others, is responsible for that change in Philip's viewpoint."

She did not pretend to misunderstand me.

"I am going to give you a sacred confidence now, which I know you will forget as soon as you have heard it," she said, and I made the time-honored childish gesture of "crossing my heart," known to all nationalities.

"My word of honor," I said, and she smiled affectionately at me.

"I do not need that," she assured me. "I know that my simple request for secrecy would be your law."

"Thank you," I said, and after a second she told me the secret.

Made a Condition

"When I promised to marry Philip," she said simply, "I made a condition that he stop all his utterly false—even nonsensical—views of having Noel marry Olina, simply because both were of royal blood, even if—but you know that painful old story. We do not need to bring it up again."

I nodded, for I knew if she had finished her sentence it would have run "even if Noel's royal inheritance was by her sinister."

"He gave me the promise freely, as well as one to treat Mary as if she were his daughter in fact instead of in-law. He has kept both royally, as he would. You know Philip."

"Indeed I do," I said sincerely. "And, Olga, will you be surprised if I tell you that I guessed long ago the secret you have just told me?"

She looked at me with eyes widened in astonishment.

"You did?" she asked. "How could you?"

Confidential Associate

"You forget," I said, "that I was a confidential professional associate of your husband's for many years before I wrote my play and left the office end of the organization."

"No, I do not forget that," she said. "Philip has told me so often of how invaluable your research and knowledge were to him. He often wishes you were back."

"Then," I said, "you must know that I understand his moods and mental processes fairly well."

She nodded, smiling in comradely fashion at me.

"So well," she said, "that if you were not you, and I did not love you so much, I should be wildly jealous of you."

We both laughed, the mirth of good friends above petty emotions, and I went on.

Strongest Incentives

"Therefore you can deduce," I said, "that I know nothing but the very strongest of incentives would induce him to change his mind about Noel's marrying Olina, even if it meant breaking up Noel's marriage to Mary. He had an idea fixed on that royal lineage thing, and when I saw his change of attitude, I know that you alone, in all the world, could have persuaded him to change his course."

"The important thing is that he has changed," she said, rising. "And now, I really must go back, with a mind more relieved than I could have deemed possible when I came down here. I can leave the warning of Mary in your hands, then?"

"I shall see to it that she knows what to expect," I said, "and you may be sure that she will rise to the occasion beautifully."

"And I shall try to keep Olina from 'rising' too much," she said, and we parted on the little jest, which told me more than could anything else, how much happier she was then when she had come into the apartment.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDENSEN, M.D.

Joint Inflammation

Rheumatoid arthritis is an inflammation of the joints which occurs in young adults, and causes deformity of the joints. Although the exact cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not known, there are many things which suggest that in part it may be due to some sort of infection

For example, such symptoms as inflammation of the affected joints, fever, rapid heart beat and loss of weight would seem to indicate that the joint inflammation is the result of infection.

Because of these facts I have received many letters asking whether or not penicillin is of value in treating arthritis since penicillin has been shown to be helpful in infections produced by a variety of germs such as the staphylococcus and streptococcus.

Treatment for arthritis has not heretofore by any means been satisfactory. Measures usually employed such as rest, both physical and mental, rest of the joints, the application of heat and the use of a diet rich in vitamins have all been found helpful to some extent, but none apparently have been curative.

According to Dr. Bernard I. Comroe of Philadelphia, the only chemical substance which appears to be of value in treating rheumatoid arthritis is gold salts. However, these gold salts are toxic or poisonous. Some patients with arthritis are not improved by this form of treatment, and when the treatment is stopped even in the cases that are improved, relapses occur. It has been reported by many observers that patients are improved by using high dosages of vitamin D.

Dr. Comroe tried treatment of six patients who had rheumatoid arthritis, with penicillin, giving at least 100,000 units daily for two weeks. In five, the condition had been present for at least four years. In one of these, it had started in childhood, had improved and then flared up again five years later. In the sixth patient, the arthritis had been apparent only eight weeks before treatment was begun.

The penicillin was given by injection into a muscle every three hours day and night for at least two weeks. All of the patients were in the hospital during the course of the treatment and all showed an active form of the joint inflammation before the penicillin treatment was started. There were swelling of the joints, fever, rapid heart beat, loss of weight, wasting of the muscles and swelling of the tissues around the joint.

There was no evidence that the penicillin altered the course of the disease in any way. During the penicillin treatment, application of heat, proper diet, and the use of drugs for relieving pain were continued, to aid in relieving symptoms.

A great deal further study of arthritis is needed, since there is little known concerning its cause. In view of the fact that penicillin does not affect the condition, it would appear that infection may not play a very prominent role in the disease.

The arthritic should not, however, give up hope, for with proper care and the use of many of the measures suggested, improvement can be brought about.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. M. S.: Is there any method of removing tiny veins from under the nose?

Answer: It is possible that the veins may be made much less noticeable by injection treatments. However, I suggest that you consult a skin specialist about this matter.

Boyle Learns Secret of Long Life in Egypt

By HAL BOYLE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CAIRO, March 13—The firmest advocate of Egypt's custom of taking a siesta during the hot months is an American dentist who has practiced here for 30 years. He is big and heartily healthy. When he is complimented on the way he has endured the climate here he replies:

"There is nothing wrong with this climate if you learn to live comfortable than Cairo's famous the Egyptians themselves do. You've got to take a good afternoon nap.

Hal Boyle

"There are too many Americans and Englishmen who come out here and pooh-pooh the siesta nabit. They are healthy, active middle-aged men and they simply refuse to take it easy when they should. While I am lying down in the afternoon enjoying a pleasant refreshing sleep they are tramping around a golf course in the hot sun or galloping around some tennis court.

"The fools! The first thing you know they keel over and die of heart attacks. I wouldn't mind it so much—everybody has got to lead his own life—but I have to go to their funerals and they always hold them in the afternoon. Then I have to miss my siesta—all because they didn't have common sense.

Floating Hotels Used

Cairo Hotels are as crowded as those in western cities. One of the biggest ambitions of any traveler is to arrive in some city late at night and find two rooms with three baths waiting for him instead of one room with four roommates and one washbowl. It is a futile hope.

I ended up in a houseboat on the Nile. To solve the housing shortage tourist agencies have turned their river steamers into floating hotels.

They are anchored in one of the best residential district in Cairo and in many ways are more comfortable than Cairo's famous but much more old-fashioned land based hostelries.

You have a very chummy feeling with the buried pharaohs when you wake at 10 a. m. and lazily watch orange peels floating downstream past your window toward the Mediterranean.

Each boat has a well furnished bar, lounge and dining room but its regular employes feel they are slumming. They don't like that anchored feeling.

"Next winter we will have our regular tourist cruises on the Nile," said the Swiss manager. "Then everybody will be happy again."

He and all his men want to get back to the old familiar ways of peace, the old ways that are so hard sometimes to find again after the tumult and uncertainty of war.

Sons "No Good"

If the two sons of Capt. William B. Foster, Albuquerque, New Mexico, pulp magazine writer, were under 18 years of age—"and also living at home"—he could get out of the Army on points.

But, Sgt. William Jr., 24, and Corp. Russell, 20, both went into the service under Uncle Sam's colors too, so their dad's service points don't mean a thing.

"If they were both home and under 18 I'd have 67 points—just what I need to get out," said Foster, whose oldest boy was already on the way home when I talked to the father in New Delhi, India.

Foster, who also has a daughter Patty, 16, waiting at home for him, has gathered much good fiction material during his three years in the service.

As one of the nation's best known western story magazine writers his tales run into several million words and friends expect that from now on he cowboys will be riding elephants.

SAYS BRITISH SHOULD GIVE BASES IN DEAL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13 — Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace said yesterday he thought Great Britain should transfer certain war bases to the United States on a permanent basis.

He also told the senate banking committee that he would not support the proposed $3,750,000,000 loan to Britain "for a moment" if he thought it was a step toward alliance with Britain.

Wallace commented on these points in reply to questions after reading a prepared statement indorsing the loan.

Senator McFarland (D-Ariz.) mentioned, without specifying by name, the transfer of war bases built by the U. S. on British soil. He asked whether Britain should not be willing to transfer these permanently.

"Yes, I think she should be," Wallace replied.

Wallace said there was some slight risk of financial loss in the proposed loan "but the risk of not making the loan is much greater."

City and County File

Birth, Death Reports

More births than deaths were registered in Marion during February, according to a report from the city health office.

The report showed 65 births recorded during last month, compared to 52 deaths. Of the total births 35 were boys and 30 were girls. Of the deaths 32 were men and 20 were women. Births in the city were one less in February than in January and deaths were 11 less.

Only two births were reported in the county last month, according to the county health office, although health officials pointed out that most babies in the county were born in Marion City hospital and therefore registered with the city health department. Deaths in the county during February totaled 16, four more than during January.

... the biggest highway projects is the Moscow-Simferopol speedway, connecting the capital with the Russian riviera on the Black sea. This road will total more than 1,000 miles.

Through War Zone

The highway, five or six lanes wide, will go through Tula and Orel, scenes of bloody fighting in the German war, and to Kursk, famous as the place where a Russian tank army broke the back of Hitler's panzer divisions in the summer of 1943.

From Kursk a speedway will be built to Kharkov and on to Zaporozhe and the Dnieper Dam, then across the Nikopol flats and the Crimean steppes.

Still another speedway will be built between Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, and Rostov on the Don at the eastern tip of the Sea of Azov.

This highway will pass through the Donbass coal basin and some of the most fertile lands in the Soviet Union's Ukranian breadbasket.

The Rostov-Kiev speedway will cross the Moscow - Crimean thoroughfare at Kharkov, thus bringing the Ukraine and the Caucasus many hours nearer to Moscow, Leningrad and other great northern population centers.

The Russians also are planning a big automobile road through Latvia and Lithuania. This will afford the Soviet Union a fine highway paralleling the Baltic.

Work actually has been started on the highways of the south and the new commissariat is said to be expecting to tackle the northern areas this summer.

Water Is Problem

Immense challenges await the Soviet engineers in the possibilities of water transport, but large sections of this plan remain to be announced. One new project provides for a 375-mile canal in the Turkmen republic. It is described as primarily for irrigation now, but eventually may be pushed through to the Caspian sea, fulfilling a dream of Peter the Great for a waterway connecting the Baltic sea with Asia. The present project, which is expected to take two years to build, begins at Bassag on the Amu Darya river, runs west through Kelif-Uzba into the sector of the towns of Bairma Ali and Meri, then westward to the Tedzhen river where it meets the Caspian-Ashkhabad river.

The Baltic-White sea canal was completed before the war, allowing ships to sail from Leningrad to Archangel in six days instead of spending 17 to 18 going around through the North and Barents sea. During the war, however, large numbers of heavy bombs and shells fell on some of its most important links and engineers are now struggling to repair it.

Another project is a 45-mile section to connect the Volga and the Don. For years this has also been a Russian dream, starting with Peter and Catherine the Great. It too was commenced before the war, but work ceased with the German invasion. Once it is finished, Volga ships can sail from Moscow to New York by going down the Volga to Stalingrad, cutting through the canal's 15 locks to the Don, and down it to Rostov, through the Sea of Azov, Kerch strait, the Black sea, Mediterranean and Atlantic.

Gets Pacific Lanes

After the victory over Japan, Russia regained Port Arthur, Dairen and the ports of the Kuriles, affording her for the first time real sea lanes to the Pacific.

Much construction is underway or being planned at the Black sea ports and those of the Baltic republics.

Z. A. Shashkov, people's commissar of river transport, announced Nov. 24 that 1,865 miles of river transport had been added to Russia's system, since the end of the war. He said the nation was now employing roughly 58,000 miles of river lanes.

To get at every far corner of its spacious territories, the USSR is already employing a large aircraft fleet carrying about 85,000 tons of mail and 350 passengers annually, but at the end of the first of the new five-year plans, this is expected to be much increased.

Commercial lines now extend to the most distant areas of the USSR, into Afghanistan, Iran, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Albania, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Finland and Germany. A route also exists through Siberia, over the Bering straits into Alaska.

AP CHIEF SEES PEACE IN EAST

McLean Reports Tide of New Admiration for Democracy Through Orient.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, March 13—Robert McLean, president of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin and The Associated Press, declared yesterday that a dynamic new force—a surging tide of renewed admiration for the strength that flows from democracy—is at work in the far east.

This new force, said the publisher who has just returned from a 20,000-mile tour of the orient, is helping to bring about miracles of political progress.

Toured on Invitation

McLean, together with Benjamin McKelway, associate editor of the Washington Star, and Norman Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, toured the orient at the invitation of the Army and Navy.

Particularly in China, McLean asserted, reawakened admiration for democracy has become a vital factor in Far Eastern affairs. General George C. Marshall and other American military leaders have helped shape stable foundations for democratic governments that "should assure lasting peace in the orient."

McLean said that General Douglas MacArthur, supreme Allied commander in Japan, is finding himself something of a Japanese hero.

"When he leaves his office for luncheon," he stated, "he invariably meets a crowd of several hundred or thousand people who often have waited for hours just to see him walk to his car. He drives past without a glance."

"The legend even has sprung up among them that MacArthur's mother was Japanese—which explains, of course, to the Japanese minor, how he could conquer them."

Sees Fear of Russia

In China, McLean said he found everywhere "grave concern over the possibility of increased Russian infiltration" into Manchuria, Korea and the area in northern China where Chinese Communists have control.

This possibility, he continued, has been lessened by two factors, the personality of Chiang Kai-shek and the vigor and ability with which General Marshall and other American officers have moved to strengthen democratic government.

Chiang's policy, based on belief in a unified and democratic China, "embraces many of the benefits which the Chinese Communists have promised to their followers—lower taxes, wide ownership of land, broadening of voting powers and education," the publisher said, adding:

"There is no question of the desires of the people in all areas where true democracy and Russian Communism come in contact—and they should have the opportunity of choice."

"Unity in China," he said, "will assist greatly in assuring democratic principles the opportunity to expand and establish themselves in the Far East."

Historical Society Compiles List of Ohio Newspapers

Accurate data concerning all Ohio newspapers preserved in 161 Ohio libraries in addition to files of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society recently has been compiled in booklet form.

The booklet, known as the "Union List of Ohio Newspapers Available in Ohio," was prepared by Arthur D. Mink of the society's newspaper division. It lists Alphabetically by towns and cities the names of newspapers, their dates of publication and in what libraries they may be found.

The new booklet supplements one published by the society in March 1943 entitled "Title List of Ohio Newspapers." Both publications may be obtained from the librarian, Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, Ohio State Museum, Columbus 10, O. It is available at the historical society museum.

The booklet lists such early Marion newspapers as the Marion Phenix, published in 1830 and the Marion Gazette, published in 1837. Other Marion newspapers listed include the Buckeye Eagle, 1844; the Marion Democrat, 1866; the Marion Democratic Mirror, 1840; the Marion County Whig, 1842; the Ohio Star, 1885; the Marion Star, 1884 and the Marion Tribune, 1892.

In Delaware the Gazette, published in 1820 as the Columbian Advocate and Franklin Chronicle, is listed. In Upper Sandusky the Wyandot Union Republican is listed as published in 1845. The Kenton Democrat, published in 1844, is shown as one of the earliest Kenton newspapers.

The Archeological and Historical Society has what is recognized as one of the leading newspaper collections in the country and the largest collection of Ohio newspapers in existence.

We Sincerely Regret That We Cannot Accept--For The Present--Any Further Requests For Hosiery--

SINCE our special announcement of February 19th we have received thousands of very fine letters and post card requests

These have now reached that point where it will require months to complete the list.

While the allotments of NYLONS which we are to receive from the manufacturers promise to increase steadily the supply still remains woefully short of meeting the demand.

However, with the approach of warm weather we have reasons to believe that the present acute shortage will steadily be relieved

In the meantime, just as rapidly as our shipments of NYLONS are received, we will strive to notify our good customers, both cash and credit, when their stockings are here.

As we so frequently have repeated, we are certain to make many mistakes, despite the very best efforts.

Wherever mistakes occur, we can only humbly hope that our good friends will understand that we are doing the best we know how.
It is fully realized that "our best" will not be nearly good enough for any good and perfect solution of this baffling problem is quite beyond us

We can only request your tolerant understanding of the difficult dilemma, which merchants face

THANKS---from the very bottom of our hearts, for your hearty and friendly response to our new plan of distributing NYLONS

THE WONDERFULLY fine letters, which so many of you have taken the time and trouble to write, did our hearts good.

Your kind and considerate response has given us renewed determination to spare neither effort nor expense in an "all out" effort to handle the matter as fairly as it possibly can be.
We hope to receive additional shipments of NYLONS during the present month. As rapidly as such shipments arrive, cards will be mailed out to just as many as possible of those of you who have mailed in your names

But please remember that this necessarily must take considerable time which will be entirely dependent upon how many pairs of NYLONS we secure from the manufacturers.

Please permit us to voice, once again, our sincere thanks and appreciation.

He said he expected to fly to France Sunday to begin a tour of food shortage countries for the American government.

He was asked to comment upon criticism of his selection to help conduct the food conservation program in this country and to survey conditions abroad. His questioner said he referred to criticism made by the Political Action Committee.

"I do not get very excited over it. I do not want to make a formal reply to the criticism."

In appealing for the drastic cut in consumption of wheats and fats in this country, President Truman's emergency committee said such a mighty volunteer effort is needed for the next 120 days to tide the hungry abroad over "a terrible four months until the next harvest."

Addition of Yeast To Menu One Way To Beat Food Cut

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY, March 13—One way for American housewives to make up for the 40 per cent cut in wheat and 20 in fats for the starving peoples overseas, is to add yeast to many of their home-cooked dishes.

Experiments showing that this addition of yeasts is both palatable and one of the greatest improvements possible in nutrition were presented today to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Barnett Sure, head of the department of agricultural chemistry of the University of Arkansas.

He showed by animal feeding that yeasts are one of the finest sources of protein, and furnish better proteins than those normally present in the wheat that Americans are asked to give up. The yeasts used for this purpose are both the ordinary sort and brewers yeast, the latter a by-product of breweries.

He said that these yeasts can be used readily to enrich corn bread, rice, meat dishes, soups, especially thick soups and gravies, ketchup, chili, tomato juice, peanut butter, chocolate milk, malted milk, also in bread, muffins and clam chowder and in cookies, cakes, doughnuts, stews and cheese dishes. The yeasts were said not to change flavors of the dishes.

Warrant Officers Get Income Tax Exemption

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13—An internal revenue bureau ruling yesterday gave all Army warrant and flight officers the same complete exemption from income tax on service-derived pay which enlisted men enjoy.

But the ruling made "chief" warrant officers of the navy, coast guard and marines subject to income tax on service pay above $3,300, just as commissioned officers are. Other warrant officers of those three branches were given the enlisted men's exemption.

Feed Your Dog as Many Famous Breeders Do

The Other Fellow's Skin

PUBLICITY given to an order to the 203rd antiaircraft battalion in Germany to refrain from criticizing Russia in the presence of Germans is a timely reminder to all of us that Germans have a vicious interest in friction between the Allies.

The battalion's commander, Lt. Col. Frank Ebey, properly reminds his command that Germans, not Russians, were the enemy; that Russians, not Germans, deserve consideration; and that as soldiers occupying a defeated country his men are representatives of their government.

It is too bad that Col. Ebey's earnest admonition to his command should contain one wartime fallacy that has been kept in circulation by propaganda. It is the fallacy that "millions of Russian soldiers and civilians died to save our skins." In various forms, the same fallacy has been circulated about Britons, Greeks, Poles, Frenchmen, Dutchmen, Norwegians and Yugoslavs: that they died to save American skins.

All who died and sacrificed in the war to defeat Germany, Italy and Japan shared a common purpose—to defeat the enemy. To advance that purpose they helped one another in varying degrees. But it never was plainer than it is now that the other fellow's skin was a secondary consideration. The first thought of every member of the Allies was self-preservation, not abstract idealism. If that had been recognized during the war and were to be recognized more honestly in attempts to avert another war, a great deal of confusion might have been stopped before it got started.

Is Loan the Word?

WHEN Secretary of Treasury Vinson used up nearly 8,000 words to open congressional hearings on the $3,750,000,000 Anglo-American trade and financial agreement, the ribbon clerks trying to follow the deal realized the argument would be as hard to comprehend as the amount.

There are comprehensible details here and there, however. One of them is a purely negative detail—the misuse of words. Experts speak of the money which is to be made available to British by the United States as a credit. They speak of interest rates, and such things contribute to the idea that the United States is going to make a loan to Britain. The word is misleading.

The American taxpayer has been fooled twice before on this word. In World War I, the United States made a loan to Great Britain. In World War II, there was a more adroit explanation. Instead of lending money, the taxpayer was told that he was lending the British a garden hose to put out a fire. It was a nice figure of speech.

As it turned out, the hose was fastened to an American spigot. This country furnished the hose, also the water. The water is gone forever, and so is the hose. What may have been an excellent idea has turned sour in the taxpayer's mind because he was gratuitously fooled into thinking he was going to get something back—something tangible. But what was called a loan in World War I, lend-lease in World War II and now is being spoken of as a credit is really a subsidy. If it were called by its right name, it would be easier to talk about and easier to understand.

The Maginot Bomb

ASIDE from an occasional resolution on future use of the secret of releasing atomic energy, the almost forgotten efforts in congress to establish a commission for the secret's control and the gags of would-be comedians, the atomic bomb is now being taken for granted.

This is possibly the most dangerous attitude that public opinion could drift into, under the circumstances. It is dangerous because it is founded on a conception of the atomic bomb that was formed last summer when Hiroshima and Nagasaki were blasted into ruins.

When World War I ended, France had a conception of future danger formed by its experience with massed armies fighting to a stalemate in trench warfare. That was not the only conception formed by World War I experiences.

Great Britain thought of submarine warfare as it was waged from 1914 to 1917. Military air power had to overcome the dead weight of experience with clumsy German bombers and light combat planes. Tanks, it was assumed, were going to be the same in the future as they had been in the past. When World War II began, a grim process of revelation began with it.

If the atomic bomb reappears it will reappear in a modern form. It has been disclosed, as a matter of fact, that the bombs dropped on Japan already were obsolete, though the public still was trying to comprehend them in their first form. The ultimate secret is not going to be how to release atomic energy—which seems to be the secret now—but what new things are being discovered about atomic energy from month to month and year to year.

The tendency to believe, because we want to believe, that the atomic bomb will not be subject to the same development that is applied to all means of warfare may give the United States a Maginot Line complex more fateful than the one that misled Frenchmen into forgetting that each new weapon begets a more powerful weapon.

Confusion Pattern in New Wage-Price Policy.

WASHINGTON, March 13—Now let me explain the latest Truman-Bowles wage price policy issued Monday:

Bars to wage increases are to be removed and patterns established with ifs, ands, and buts. One of the ifs provides an 18½ cents an hour increase if the local pattern permits, but not necessarily. In case this provision does not apply, the cost-of-living pattern will become a but, although not automatically. The cost-of-living pattern is changed from—and here I quote the official explanation—"an increase in straight-time hourly earnings in the appropriate unit to the extent" that increases had fallen short of a 33 per cent increase since January 1, 1941. That is the old, old pattern since February 14, it is to be changed to—I quote again—"increases in basic wages if hourly wages of the appropriate unit have not risen 33 per cent since January 1, 1941." This is the different wage policy as the official handouts present it. Different, isn't it?

Policy Explained

The price policy is explained with equal simplicity. The new policy—I quote again—"will not mean a new higher level of prices." There are no ifs, ands, or buts about this. Upon this Mr. Bowles is firm. His OPA, however, simultaneously provided a but, if not a butt—or butts. At the very moment of the Bowles announcement, it made public a general increase in the prices of men's and boys' clothing in order to induce manufacturers to release their stores to the public. Twenty-four hours earlier OPA authorized what it called "substantial rises in cotton textile prices" to spur production of shirts and dresses. Just before that, a general rise of 10 cents a barrel in the price of oil had been authorized by the same official agency under Mr. Bowles. Steel had been sent up by the government $2 to $12 a ton. Building material increases had been directed by OPA on lumber specifically and an announcement was issued bragging about the tremendous increases, which, the government said, no longer justified the weak production of such materials. Too numerous for this terse column were other additional price buts, buts—or butts.

Now do you understand? If not I will put it in a nutshell, where it seems to be anyhow. The recent wage increase formula is to be liberalized tremendously, but not too much, greatly, a little, maybe and maybe not, but the price formula is not to be liberalized one inch in the struggle to hold the bulge against inflation; that is, not for anything, and by this I mean not anything so far except steel, building materials, fuel, clothing, shirts, dresses, sugar, butter and other foods and other materials.

This is the way they tell it—officially. Yet they wonder why there is confusion.

Effort Fails

Seriously I do not think they are as confused as they say. I think I can detect a ray of light behind the flimsy curtain of words, namely this:

*The government tried to in*crease wages without increasing prices and found this could not be done. Goods were backed up in some lines because these could not be sold at a profit. These were being kept in storage. Production was discouraged in other lines because it could not be attempted profitably. A readjustment was necessary in order to get distribution as well as production. This was further advisable as a discouragement to black markets. Indeed some black markets had become bigger than the white. (For further explanation look back upon my columns of the past two weeks.) From a political standpoint also the relaxations were advisable in order to encourage congress to renew presidential authority over economics in the war powers acts expiring June 30.

This maneuver is being covered by as confusing a curtain of "explanations" as ever emanated from a government mimeograph machine, and this is saying something as those machines have seldom been geared for frankness.

MINE PAY AND COAL—HIKE IT OR LUMP IT

The United Mine Workers have filed notice of intent to strike unless their demands are met.

That was as inevitable as the collection plate on Sunday morning.

The annual UMW ultimatum has long since replaced the first robin as the surest harbinger of spring.

March is the month when furbearing animals and their winter hibernation. And John L. Lewis is no exception.

Lewis won his fight for portal-to-portal pay a few years ago. And ever since mine owners have been anticipating a demand that they move the doors back.

April first has been set as the new contract deadline. After that miners won't go down until wages go up.

Incidentally, those who foresee atomic energy replacing coal in a few years reckon without due credit to the Lewis ingenuity. The last the Navy is going to give atomic power will be but a preliminary to the one it'll get when it starts moving in on old John L.

Indonesian Election Issue

By Henk Kersting

By The Associated Press

AMSTERDAM—The Indonesian issue dominates a campaign among five political parties now fighting public apathy to get control of the Netherlands government in a parliamentary and provincial election next May.

The new leftist Labor party demands self-determination for the empire's overseas peoples. Centrist and rightist parties insist on restoration of Dutch rule before further negotiations. In addition, Laborites call for nationalization of mines, public utilities and the Netherlands Bank.

Political observers expect no party to win a majority great enough to form a government, but look for the Labor party and the Roman Catholic party both to finish at the top. They say a working majority may be found in a "Roman-Red" cooperation.

The Dutch will vote on candidates for the lower house, with its 100 seats; provincial councils, and municipal councils, and the provincial councils in turn will elect the senate. Other parties in the field are the Communists; the Christian Historians, Protestant and slightly to the right of the Catholics, and the ultra-conservative Calvinist party.

Voters generally are apathetic to their pleas. They are wrapped up in a personal problem—the struggle for food, clothing and shelter in a land despoiled by war and occupation.

The Labor party is a fusion of the strong Social Democratic workers party, Prime Minister Willem Schermerhorn's underground-born Netherlands People's Movement and two small parties. The Catholic party includes both progressives and conservatives brought together by a common faith.

Unlike many European nations, the Dutch have no monarchy problem. Queen Wilhelmina, despite war, occupation and dissension, is still on the throne and no one seeks to depose her.

Putting the Bee on Old Age

ATLANTA—Mrs. Helen Dortch Longstreet, widow of the confederate general, believes that eating the residue of bee hives after honey has been cleaned from them is a formula for long life.

Mrs. Longstreet is happy with these hives and is trying to persuade the ranking surviving confederate soldier, who recently celebrated his 100th birthday, to try them and live longer.

The indomitable little Mrs. Longstreet asked the American ambassador to Moscow, W. Averell Harriman, to obtain a reputed Russian formula for prolonging life. Ambassador Harriman wrote that a rumor of a life-prolonging substance had been developed by the Russians was probably traceable to investigations being conducted by Prof. Nikolai V. Tsitsin.

"It seems," said Harriman, "that during the course of studies of the habits of people over 100 years old living in the Soviet Union it was found that many of these people were engaged in producing and selling honey.

"After the best grade of honey had been sold, the residue was consumed by these vendors themselves. This residue was found to contain significant quantities of pollen.

"Prof. Tsitsin feels that the pollen was responsible for prolonging the lives of these people, but it has not been established that this is a fact.

"Even if it had been established that eating pollen would prolong *life, there would still be the ques*tion as to whether longevity results from a whole lifetime of eating pollen or if it is possible to attain the longevity no matter at what age one began eating pollen."

Absence Makes Taxpayers Ponder

By The Associated Press

HOLYOKE, Mass. — A municipal "truant list" to curb absenteeism has been suggested by the Holyoke Taxpayers Association.

Executive Secretary Edwin A. Seibel notified the mayor that the association would like to see "specifically stated on all municipal payrolls the number of days each employe is absent from his or her work, either for reasons of illness or annual vacation leave."

A similar policy for the police department made effective some time ago resulted in a "pronounced reduction" of absentees, Seibel said.

The New GI Loan Plan

By Rowland Evans, Jr.

WASHINGTON, March 13—No longer will veterans wanting GI loans wear out their pen hand signing documents. New Veterans Administration (VA) loan regulations, the result of the amended GI Bill, call for the veteran's signature in one place just once.

Take the form being distributed to supervised lending institutions to be used when a veteran wants a government - guaranteed home loan under the GI Bill. (Similar forms have been issued to cover farm and business loans.)

Three-quarters of the way down on the back of the application form is a box headed "Must be signed by veteran." It reads (a) "I declare I do not have an application pending for a loan for the purposes stated herein; (b) I previously have used my guarantee benefit for other loan or loans as follows: $. ....for real estate; $..... for non-real estate."

Greatly Simplified

Then follows the request to the administrator for endorsement of honorable discharge or certificate of eligibility for whatever the amount of the requested guarantee happens to be.

Below is the space in which the veteran will put his John Henry.

It's as simple as that, and a far cry from the old, complicated form which had lenders and veterans tearing their hair out by the roots.

Here are some other new and simpler loan regulations:

The only authority vested in VA is that of appointing local appraisers to see that the price of the property involved in the loan is "reasonable."

It used to be "reasonable and normal." Since few values today are "normal," many otherwise sound loans could not be made.

Discharge Is Certificate

The veteran's honorable discharge now automatically becomes his certificate of eligibility. He doesn't have to apply to the VA for one.

Veterans who have no honorable discharge still have to make application to VA for the certificate of eligibility. The VA takes a keen look at the conditions surrounding his discharge, and if they are not dishonorable a certificate is issued.

The new loan regulations also do these things:

1. Increase the amount of the guarantee to $4,000 on all real estate loans. The maximum used to be $2,000.

2. Extend the time during which veterans may take advantage of their GI loan privileges from two to 10 years after the official end of the war.

3. Extend the period in which loans must be repaid to 25 years for home loans and 40 years for farm loans.

VA Insures Loans

4. Provide for the VA to insure loans, instead of guaranteeing them. VA can insure 15 per cent of the aggregate of loans made by any one lender to any number of veterans. VA says this plan should broaden the scope of credit assistance to veterans.

5. Allow the cost of a lot on which a veteran wants to build a home to be included in the loan.

6. Allow GI loans to veterans for delinquent indebtedness.

7. Broaden and liberalize farm loans so that the loan may be used for practically every ordinary farming purpose.

8. Allow inventory and working capital to be included in business loans.

9. Extend loan privileges to men on terminal leave and servicemen who are hospitalized pending final discharge.

Go to Your Bank

If you're a veteran and want a GI loan, don't write the Veterans Administration about it. The VA lends no money. The place to go is your local bank or trust company.

Tell the loan section of your bank that you want to borrow money under the GI Bill of Rights and show your honorable discharge. After the loan has been made, the VA will guarantee a certain portion (not to exceed 50 per cent) of it. The guarantee simply acts as security for the lender and thus makes it easier for you to get your loan.

More than 76,000 GI loans have already been made. They represent a guarantee commitment of almost $1331/3 millions. To date VA has paid to lenders a sum of $43,673 on 51 loans which have resulted in claims.

Daily Bible Thought

When you do wrong you are entrapping yourself and ruining your future. Avoid the trap, be at least as wise as a bird in the air. Prov. 1:17: "In vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird; and these lay in wait for their own blood, they lurk privily for their own lives."

Nest on Wheels

By Truman Twill

Then about this time of year, there is the question of whether to shovel out the car or let the family car, or to let it accumulate for another month.

Jalopy-cleaning can be put off indefinitely. But the urge to get at it is strongest after a real hard winter which has filled up what the old man once described as the "roomy interior."

A peck of gravel and cinders, pea-size and up, distributed over the floor coverings and underneath their edges; a dozen or more sucker sticks protruding from the cracks of the seat cushions and jabbing backseat drivers;

Three editions of the local newspaper and an out-of-town edition torn into quarter-sized bits; a half a dozen mittens, representing the lone survivors of as many pairs lost during the winter;

A stray overshoe pining for its mate which fell out of an open door during February; a few inches of tubular chromium trim torn loose in a hurry with a garage door and a bumper brace knocked off in a collision with a coal truck;

A basketful of toys of assorted sizes left behind by children of assorted sizes asserting their inalienable right to make every automobile ride a nightmare of dive-bombing and machine-gunning; a well-ripened bone buried in the depths by a dog whose confusion was understandable;

A quantity of shredded tobacco, the remains of numerous cigarets and cigars dropped on the floor and ground into pulp by countless shuffling feet; a quantity of light ashes from the cigarettes and cigars that were not dropped in the confusion; a quantity of cigaret and cigar butts in and out of ash trays;

A cuff link, numerous bobby pins, assorted handkerchiefs, matches, match folders, gum wrappers, candy wrappers, broken sunglasses, combs, hairpins, a battered compact, buttons and nuts that have broken from their moorings;

A traffic ticket that was "forgotten" in the advertising events that took place six months ago; drawstrings and metal clips from mittens and covers; a desiccated windshield wiper, a soggy stocking cap; a letter that was never mailed; and this is only the beginning—

Because when the goony hunt gets rolling and the car seats finally are taken out, there will really be debris to marvel at then. It would be no surprise to find the lost chord and the week-end, not to mention loose change, added up to $1.37, seven bus checks, a set of trade checks and a pocket piece the last time the car was shoveled out, a year ago.

the home service department of the Marion County Red Cross chapter has sent 782 wires and has received 697.

The local chapter still receives requests to write for information on health and welfare reports on servicemen overseas. Perhaps the family have not heard for months from the serviceman or the serviceman is writing that he has not had mail from them. A home service worker then writes the Red Cross field director, in care of the serviceman's APO or FPO address, who in turn contacts the soldier or sailor, and gives him the message from home.

If the son has been transferred the chapter is advised and the field director forwards the Red Cross letter to the field director covering the serviceman's new station. All problems pertaining to communications are handled through the home service department.

This is one of the many services sponsored by the Marion County Chapter of the Red Cross. Marion's quota of the one-hundred million dollar National Red Cross Campaign Fund is $38,300.

presence. In a few hours a reply is received that the military had granted an extension for the serviceman to remain home a few more days.

The father-in-law of a serviceman recently contacted the local chapter requesting an emergency furlough for a serviceman stationed overseas because of a serious operation the serviceman's wife was to undergo. The local chapter sent a wire to the National Red Cross Home Service at Washington, D. C., including the doctor's diagnosis of the wife's illness, relationship of the patient to the serviceman, the doctor's definite statement as to the need for serviceman's presence and the importance of the serviceman's presence. Also to the condition of the patient and length of the serviceman's service overseas. The request was referred to the Adjutant General's Office, who granted the furlough and radiogramed the furlough decision to the serviceman's theater commander. The serviceman was brought back to the United States by plane and arrived in time to be with his wife at the time of her operation.

It is interesting to note that since August 1945 at the close of the war through January 1946,

Army Engineers Decline To OK LaRue Flood Control Proposal

Special to The Star

LARUE, March 13—Lt. Col. George W. Kibler and William H. Booth of the Cincinnati flood control board, a section of the Army Engineers, declined to approve LaRue flood control proposals presented to them at a special meeting of the LaRue Business Men's association here last night. The Cincinnati engineers had been invited to discuss flood control projects and a proposal to dredge and straighten the Scioto river in this area was submitted by a committee of local business men and farmers.

It was the opinion of the guest speakers that such straightening and dredging did not solve the problem, literally shoving it on down the river. They also rejected a proposal to build a dike around LaRue on the grounds that the cost, $400,000, was too high, considering the value of the affected property. However, if such projects are desired they suggested application to the state conservation department.

Their own recommendations, developed after extensive study of the entire Northwestern Ohio area, are to build a 4,000 foot dam three miles southeast of Kenton to divert water from the Scioto river into the Sandusky river via the Tymochtee creek. To control floods in the Sandusky river area a reservoir covering 16,000 acres would be built near Marseilles.

Once this project was completed water could be diverted in either direction, depending upon the need. It would lower the level of the highest tides at LaRue by four feet.

Col. Kibler explained that this would be a federal project and require an appropriation from congress. He said the Army Engineers were not interested in more localized projects.

The association appointed Mayor John Markey and Don Clements as delegates to a meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Drainage association Friday night in Findlay.

Dwight Baker presided at the meeting and Rev. William Meyer, secretary of the association, had charge of the arrangements. Marion men who attended were Clyde Porterfield of the state highway department, Walter Johnson, county engineer and Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner.

Along with them was an entirely different class which also radiated not only hope but confidence and a determination to get the best out of a bad situation. They were the tanned young men and women skiers who seize every opportunity to pursue their favorite sport in the Tyrol.

Good and Bad Too

There were a few obvious war profiteers who travel back and forth making a profit out of their country's suffering, and there were honest tradesmen who still believe in Austria and are taking a hand in her reconstruction.

There were, of course, the inevitable Army officers, for at one time or another during the 24-hour journey you will encounter British, American, French and Russians.

These represent the forces of occupation, which for years will maintain order while Austria is undergoing rehabilitation and reform. There also were numerous UNRRA workers of various nationalities, representing humanitarian efforts to help the fallen country.

The trip into the occupied zones of Austria is filled with thrills and some anxiety. Not only do civilian passengers have to carry passports, which are up to date in every detail, but both civilians and military have to provide themselves with permits to pass through the American, French and Russian control zones.

Forget one of these permits and you are in for trouble. The Americans took a man and woman off our train, but whether it was for lack of permits or for some other reason wasn't made known.

Examination of permits goes on through the night and it was about four o'clock when the Russians went through the train. It was a tense time, for they accept no arguments in place of correct permits.

Much Is Undamaged

You begin your trip amidst the grandeur of the Alps and for hours run through country untouched by force. There is nothing visible to indicate that this is part of a defeated nation. Gradually, however, you begin to note bridges which have been destroyed by bombing and then as you come into the industrial areas there are towns and cities which have suffered heavily.

Vienna is a shocking state of destruction from bombs and gunfire, but the devastation is nothing like so complete as it is in Berlin and in many other German cities we have visited. Many of its fine buildings can be restored.

Mrs. Mack and I are housed in what was one of the capital's foremost hotels, which is now used by the American Army. Half this hotel was destroyed but the other half is still its luxurious self. From the windows of our quarters we look across to the city opera house, which is heavily damaged but which last night was able to provide facilities for an opera.

Austria and its capital will take long to recover, but they are on their way.

CONGRESS MAPS WAR AGAINST LOBBYISTS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 13 — House leaders set out today to crack down on lobbyists.

Their effort — launched amid assertions that Washington is "seething" with representatives of pressure groups—has a twin goal:

1. To ease pressure on congressmen, and

2. To bring into the open foes of such key administration proposals as continuance of OPA.

Whether the house leadership will back an all-out investigation into lobbyists' activities or merely direct a series of public blasts at them remained uncertain.

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill) of the rules committee and a frequent administration spokesman, wants the house to order a thorough inquiry. He introduced a bill yesterday calling for the creation of a five-member investigating committee.

His move came only a day after Speaker Rayburn (D-Texas) told the house that Washington "for the past six months has been loaded down and seething with utility lobbyists."

Recalling that he had fought "utility lobbyists" in 1935 when he sponsored the present Holding Company act, Rayburn added in one of his infrequent speeches from the floor:

"If they're spoiling for another fight with me they can get it."

Their assertions followed denunciations of lobbyists last week by Stabilization Director Chester Bowles in a radio address and Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt in testimony before the house banking committee.

Discussing his proposal for an investigation with a reporter, Sabath said he wants it aimed particularly at "the lobby fighting housing legislation, trying to weaken price control and to prevent development of public power."
